
[The following text is a dense, continuous block of illegible characters and symbols, likely representing a corrupted scan of a document page. It contains no discernible words or structure.]

{ Richly beautifying CELEBRATE IN STYLE
11353

{ Everything has beauty HOW BEAUTIFUL IS THAT! }

11351

{ A renaissance of style THE SENSE & SENSUALITY
11354

Stay Curious Stay Inspired BEAUTY BUTRA
11352

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office of National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 10.5 million by 2026, and the number of people aged 75 and over to 6.5 million (Office of National Statistics 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of older people, and a number of initiatives have been launched in the UK to address this need. The Department of Health has launched the 'Age Friendly' initiative, which aims to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people. The initiative includes a number of measures, such as ensuring that services are accessible to older people, and that staff are trained to meet the needs of older people. The initiative also includes a number of measures to ensure that older people are consulted in the design of services.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

The 'Age Friendly' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people. It is a multi-departmental initiative, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is designed to ensure that services are designed to meet the needs of older people, and that older people are consulted in the design of services. The initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for addressing the needs of older people.

