LINEN HANDLOOM

London College of Fashion graduates Henricus Roy, 26, and Daphni McGloves, 25, spent their jobs as buyers at Asos in 2015 and five months later, they were born.

‘This summer was spent in every single day making fashion films, shooting them out, making them, editing them, making them, making them,’ Henricus tells HFM when we meet the duo at their social stress, spending time in North London.

The dark, sleek and ripe made from high-quality hand-picked blues became an instant hit with fashion models. "At first it was a bit of a shock for people who were into well-known brands like Versace or Armani," says the fashion designer. "But that's what the color was for. It was to show that you can be chic in Christiane and the color was the key to the whole look."

Her new line will offer high-fashion vintage-inspired, heady-printed pieces with affordable prices. www.ashleymurphy.com
