The surreal experience of being able to capture people in their element , as they light up against the canvas of nature , speaks happiness to me . The moment I captured this photograph , a sense of deep peace poured from it and settled upon me . It almost felt like a revelation ; after all , our connection with the sindhuri sarees is primary . I wasn't seeking this experience , but it happened . In a way , it was profound . It is the unanticipated emotion of noticing the world that brings me happiness . That is why , I am always looking to capture that split second and keep it safe with me . "
